Uncle Zeke and Hulda Visit the Stores

Just my luck when trout commenced biting in Lake Penesseewassee Tuesday had to leave Seth Skinner at noon and get ready for the trip to Norway village. We had the boat set just right for something big, yet when Hulda issues orders, it means drop everything and mark time. Anyhow, we drove to town affixing and had a pretty nice time window shopping and peeking into new things around the stores.

Pretty hot weather for May gave us a hankering for ice cream served at the McAllister's Store. The cream is good, strictly pure, without filler or stuffings. Hulda sighted a bargain special in Coty's combination perfume and face powder, marked down to 75c. "Won't she smell nice and look pretty for a long time?"

At the James Smith Shoe Store, my better two-thirds found cute infants' moccasins, sizes 2-6, for $1. Chocolate and smoke are the shades with the slogan, "Outgrown before Outworn." A $3 Oxford for men is a good buy. They come in kangaroo and calf, with wide and narrow toes, leather sole and rubber heel. Other reasonable footwear is ready to pass along to customers.

Stone is pushing chocolates to the front, in anticipation of Mother's Day, May 14. The daintiest gift boxes contain Whitman's, marked from 50c to $2. A vanity case, holding a coupon good for a puff and powder is given with Gales Double Gift Chocolates for Mother's Day. Many other dainty things appropriate for the occasion are displayed on the left when entering the store.

At the L. F. Pike Co., I beat Hulda to it and purchased an athletic shirt and shorts. No more red wooleens for the old man this season. When short running pants can be bought for a quarter, why sweat one's life away? A fifty-cent quality has elastic guaranteed to last during the autumn line of the garment. Athletic shirts are of cotton yarn or rayon yarn to suit the purchaser. Union suits are nainsook, knee lengths, and sleeveless. Some are knitted jersey with or without buttons. Two piece balbriggan are popular to the non-fastidious at 42c and 69c a garment.

New sport shoes had the high spot at the E. N. Swett Shoe Co. Warm weather is making the brown Gillie ties for women popular. Deb sandals catch the eye of school girls and many women prefer the easy fitting foot protection for use about the home. Hulda bought a pair for the house. Glad of it for she will now release my carpet slippers.

The special sale started at the Merchant Store is in full swing as we soon found.

This commenced Saturday and continues until next Monday evening. Zeb explained to wife that this sale will mean a lot to the thrifty. Prices are going up and this probably will be the last call for some of the worthwhile goods in the present low price range. He said replacement prices will certainly advance. We found a large stock in place for the Saturday and Monday shoppers.

Ashton's drug store has a drive on fishing tackle with about everything necessary to catch the hefty ones. Telescopic rods are marked $1.75 up, reels 35c up. Great variety of flies, lures, spinners, leaders, reels, minnow pails, dipping nets and the like. On the other hand baseball boys can get fitted out with mitts, gloves, bats, shoes, balls, score books and other articles dear to the heart of a sandlotter and other live ones.

George Bennett from Allen-West Bethel was at M. P. Tyler's a short time ago.

PINE PLANTINGS NEED CARE FORESTRY SPECIALIST SAYS

"Weed trees such as grey birch and alders often ruin a while pine planting if they are not removed. Wind and snow cause these weed trees to whip against the leader of the young trees, and in the east of the tree, make a crook in the main stem of the tree," according to A. D. Nutting, extension forestry specialist, who says that some care is needed in a majority of plantings to keep the trees from being crowded out or to assure a good lumber product at maturity.

"It is not necessary to remove all the weed trees in a planted area; only those hindering the growth of the planted trees need to be cut. The weed trees that are not hindering the young trees growth serve two purposes for the first few years after the planting. They aid in the control of the white pine weevil to some extent, if taller than the planting, and secondly, supply shade until the young trees get size enough to furnish their own, thus preventing the lower branches from becoming too large for lumber purposes.

"The method to use for controlling the weed trees depends largely on the size. If the brush is small, a bush scythe is about the best tool to use. For bushes where the pine are three to four feet in height, lopping the bushes is sufficient to give the pine a chance to grow. In this way, a man can cover an acre plantation in one or two hours.

"July and August are the best months to kill weed trees by culture. Other work is usually pushing them, so, like the old adage, 'the best time to cut bushes is when the scythe is sharp,' applies here, for the best time is now before the plantation is ruined.

"If the bluster rust has attacked the plantation, removal of the lower branches will save many of the trees. They should be removed with a saw or clippers just outside the shoulder, close to the main stem. Not more than one-half the trees height in green limbs should be pruned."

Several men from this vicinity attended the Walker Field Day.
